the adage ignorance of the law is no excuse is significantly inaccurate ignorance and mistake of law do under certain circumstances exclude responsibility both in national and international criminal law this monograph updates the existing reviews of law and practice on the topic aiming to go a step further it takes the analysis of mistake of law as a starting point for systematic observations about international criminal law in general first the volume defines the contours of the defence of mistake of law in general theory of criminal law distinguishing it from cognate defences and highlighting most notably its connection with superior orders secondly it gives an overview of the possible approaches to the defence offering examples from national law as terms of reference for the subsequent analysis of international criminal law thirdly it surveys the relevant law and practice of international criminal tribunals with a focus on the international criminal court and it contemplates offences for which a defence of mistake of law may potentially succeed finally the author tries to interpret what the rules on mistake of law applicable before international criminal tribunals imply about the purpose of punishing individuals and to the legitimacy of such punishment whilst the discourse on international criminal law is more and more concerned with global politics the defence of mistake of law in international criminal law brings back the focus on the appropriateness of imposing a guilty verdict on the individual defendant a human being constituting the basic unit of each society the australian constitution contains no guarantee of freedom of religion or freedom of conscience indeed it contains very few provisions dealing with rights in essence it is a constitution that confines itself mainly to prescribing a framework for federal government setting out the various powers of government and limiting them as between federal and state governments and the three branches of government without attempting to define the rights of citizens except in minor respects whether australia should have a national bill of rights has been a controversial issue for quite some time this is despite the fact that australia has acceded to the iccpr as well as the first optional protocol to the iccpr thereby accepting an international obligation to bring australian law into line with the iccpr an obligation that australia has not discharged australia is the only country in the western world without a national bill of rights 4 the chapters that follow in this book debate the situation in australia and in various other western jurisdictions from foreword by the hon sir anthony mason ac kbe human rights and courts
